1. Purpose

This Policy sets out the standards of business conduct to which Krystelis operates and expects its employees to act. Employees are expected to apply this Code together with all relevant Krystelis policies and procedures while carrying out duties for the Company.

2. Scope

Applies to all Krystelis employees and others working on behalf of Krystelis.

3. Our Vision

To help our customers improve the lives of patients. By providing services recognised for quality, value, and collaboration

4. Our Values

- Integrity
- Respect
- Growing Together
- Proactiveness
- Openness

5. Build Trust and Credibility

The success of our business is dependent on the trust and confidence we earn from our employees, customers, and shareholders. We gain credibility by adhering to our commitments, displaying honesty and integrity, and reaching company goals solely through honorable conduct. It is easy to say what we must do, but the proof is in our actions. Ultimately, we will be judged on what we do.

When considering any action, it is wise to ask: Will this build trust and credibility for Krystelis? Will it help create a working environment in which Krystelis can succeed over the long term? Is the commitment I am making one I can follow through with? The only way we will maximize trust and credibility is by answering “yes” to those questions and by working every day to build our trust and credibility.

6. Respect for the Individual

We all deserve to work in an environment where we are treated with dignity and respect. Krystelis is committed to creating such an environment because it brings out the full potential in each of us, which, in turn, contributes directly to our business success.

We do not discriminate against any person because of their gender, caste, religion, age, nationality, sexual orientation, disability, or any other trait protected by law

Krystelis is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to providing a workplace that is free of discrimination of all types and from abusive, offensive, or harassing behaviour. Any employee who feels harassed or discriminated against should report the incident to their manager or to any member of the Krystelis Leadership Team.

All Krystelis employees are expected to support an inclusive workplace by adhering to the following conduct standards:

- Always treat others with dignity and respect.
- Address and report inappropriate behaviour and comments that are discriminatory, harassing, abusive, offensive, or unwelcome.
- Foster teamwork and employee participation, encouraging the representation of different employee perspectives.

- Seek out insights from employees with different experiences, perspectives, and backgrounds.
- Avoid slang or idioms that might not translate across cultures.
- Support flexible work arrangements for co-workers.
- Confront the decisions or behaviours of others that are based on conscious or unconscious biases.
- Be open-minded and listen when given constructive feedback about others' perception of your conduct.

Krystelis will not tolerate discrimination, harassment or any behaviour or language that is abusive, offensive, or unwelcome.

7. Respect our Environment and Support Local Communities

Krystelis will fulfil all relevant statutory requirements related to Corporate and Social Responsibility.

We accept responsibility for the harmful effects our operations may have on both the local and global environment, and we are committed to reducing these. We will comply with all relevant environmental legislation. We will measure and set targets for our impact on the environment and implement changes to reduce this.

Krystelis will preserve a budget, beyond statutory requirements, to make monetary donations to support the communities in which we operate and alleviate those in need.

Krystelis will encourage its employees to volunteer to support their local communities. We will provide flexibility in working hours so that employees can do this.

8. Create a Culture of Open and Honest Communication

At Krystelis everyone should feel comfortable to speak their minds, particularly with respect to ethical concerns. Managers have a responsibility to create an open and supportive environment where employees feel comfortable raising such questions. We all benefit tremendously when employees exercise their power to prevent mistakes or wrongdoing by asking the right questions at the right times.

Krystelis will investigate all reported instances of questionable or unethical behaviour. In every instance where improper behaviour is found to have occurred, the company will act. We will not tolerate retaliation against employees who raise genuine ethics concerns in good faith. Krystelis's Issue Raising (Whistleblowing") procedure (SOP-COR-03) describes how employees can raise any concerns of improper behaviour and the approach that will be taken to investigate these.

9. Set Tone at the Top

Krystelis leadership has the added responsibility for demonstrating, through their actions, the importance of this Code. In any business, ethical behaviour does not simply happen; it is the product of clear and direct communication of behavioural expectations, modelled from the top and demonstrated by example.

To make our Code work, managers must be responsible for promptly addressing ethical questions or concerns raised by employees and for taking the appropriate steps to deal with such issues. Managers should not consider employees' ethics concerns as threats or challenges to their authority, but rather as another encouraged form of business communication. At Krystelis, we want the ethics dialogue to become a natural part of our daily work.

10. Uphold the Law

Krystelis's commitment to integrity begins with complying with laws, rules, and regulations where we do business. Further, each of us must understand the company policies, laws, rules, and regulations that apply to our specific roles. If we are unsure of whether a contemplated action is allowed by law or Krystelis policy, we should seek advice. We are responsible for preventing violations of law and for speaking up if we see possible violations.

Krystelis is committed to supporting drug and device development in compliance with all applicable laws, rules, and regulations. Our employees must follow standards, procedures and processes in drug, device and clinical trial documents including all applicable healthcare regulations and standard operating procedures.

Krystelis must always be inspection ready with respect to current Good Laboratory Practices, Good Clinical Practices, Good Research Practices, Good Pharmacovigilance Practices, Medical Devices, and all other requirements that apply to Krystelis business operations. We must maintain and follow our standard operating procedures implementing applicable regulatory requirements for, and adhere to, other regulatory association requirements as applicable and appropriate.

11. Competition

We are dedicated to ethical, fair, and vigorous competition. We will sell Krystelis services based on their value, superior quality, and competitive pricing. We will make independent pricing and marketing decisions and will not improperly cooperate or coordinate our activities with our competitors. We will not offer or ask for improper payments or gratuities in connection with the purchase of goods or services for Krystelis or the sales of its products or services, nor will we engage or assist in unlawful boycotts of customers.

12. Proprietary Information

It is important that we respect the proprietary rights of others. We will not acquire or seek to acquire improper means of a competitor's trade secrets or other proprietary or confidential information. We will not engage in unauthorized use, copying, distribution or alteration of software or other intellectual property.

13. Selective Disclosure

We will not selectively disclose (whether in one-on-one or small discussions, meetings, presentations, proposals or otherwise) any material non-public information with respect to Krystelis, its securities, business operations, plans, financial condition, results of operations or any development plan.

14. Avoid Conflicts of Interest

We must avoid any relationship or activity that might impair, or even appear to impair, our ability to make objective and fair decisions when performing our jobs. At times, we may be faced with situations where the business actions we take on behalf of Krystelis may conflict with our own personal or family interests. We owe a duty to Krystelis to advance its legitimate interests when the opportunity to do so arises. We must never use Krystelis property or information for personal gain or personally take for ourselves any opportunity that is discovered through our position with Krystelis.

Other ways in which conflicts of interest could arise:

- Being employed (employee or a close family member) by, or acting as a consultant to, a competitor or potential competitor, supplier or contractor, regardless of the nature of the employment, while employed with Krystelis.
- Hiring or supervising family members or closely related persons.

- Serving as a board member for an outside commercial company or organization.
- Owning or having a substantial interest in a competitor, supplier, or contractor.
- Having a personal interest, financial interest, or potential gain in any Krystelis transaction.
- Placing company business with a supplier owned or controlled by a Krystelis employee or their family.
- Accepting gifts, discounts, favours or services from a customer/potential customer, competitor, or supplier, unless equally available to all Krystelis employees.

Deciding whether a conflict of interest exists is not always easy to do. Employees with a conflict-of-interest question should seek advice from their manager. Before engaging in any activity, transaction or relationship that might give rise to a conflict of interest, employees must seek advice from their manager.

15. Gifts, Gratuities and Business Courtesies

Krystelis is committed to competing solely on the merit of our products and services. We should avoid any actions that create a perception that favourable treatment of outside entities by Krystelis was sought, received, or given in exchange for personal business courtesies. Business courtesies include gifts, gratuities, meals, refreshments, entertainment or other benefits from persons or companies with whom Krystelis does or may do business. We will neither give nor accept business courtesies that constitute, or could reasonably be perceived as constituting, unfair business inducements that would violate law, regulation, or policies of Krystelis or customers, or would cause embarrassment or reflect negatively on Krystelis's reputation.

15.1 Accepting Business Courtesies

Most business courtesies offered to us in the course of our employment are offered because of our positions at Krystelis. We should not feel any entitlement to accept and keep a business courtesy. Although we may not use our position at Krystelis to obtain business courtesies, and we must never ask for them, we may accept unsolicited business courtesies that promote successful working relationships and good will with the firms that Krystelis maintains or may establish a business relationship with.

Employees who award contracts or who can influence the allocation of business, who create specifications that result in the placement of business or who take part in negotiation of contracts must be particularly careful to avoid actions that create the appearance of favouritism or that may adversely affect the company's reputation for impartiality and fair dealing. The prudent course is to refuse a courtesy from a supplier when Krystelis participates in choosing or reconfirming a supplier or under circumstances that would create an impression that offering courtesies is the way to obtain Krystelis business.

15.2 Meals, Refreshments and Entertainment

We may accept occasional meals, refreshments, entertainment, and similar business courtesies that are shared with the person who has offered to pay for the meal or entertainment, provided that:

- They are not inappropriately lavish or excessive.
- The courtesies are not frequent and do not reflect a pattern of frequent acceptance of courtesies from the same person or entity.
- The courtesy does not create the appearance of an attempt to influence business decisions, such as accepting courtesies or entertainment from a supplier whose contract is expiring.
- The employee accepting the business courtesy would not feel uncomfortable discussing the courtesy with their manager or co-worker or having the courtesies known by the public.

15.3 Gifts

Employees may accept unsolicited gifts, other than money, which conform to the reasonable ethical practices of the marketplace, including:

- Flowers, fruit baskets and other modest presents that commemorate a special occasion.
- Gifts of nominal value, such as calendars, pens, mugs, caps and t-shirts (or other novelty, advertising or promotional items).

Generally, employees may not accept compensation, honoraria, or money of any amount from entities with whom Krystelis does or may do business. Tangible gifts (including tickets to a sporting or entertainment event) that have a market value greater than GBP 100 may not be accepted unless approval is obtained from management.

Employees with questions about accepting business courtesies should talk to their manager.

15.4 Offering Business Courtesies

Any employee who offers a business courtesy must assure that it cannot reasonably be interpreted as an attempt to gain an unfair business advantage or otherwise reflect negatively upon Krystelis. An employee may never use personal funds or resources to do something that cannot be done with Krystelis resources. Accounting for business courtesies must be done following approved company procedures.

We may provide nonmonetary gifts (e.g., company logo apparel or similar promotional items) to our customers, unless this is not allowed within customer contracts. Further, management may approve other courtesies, including meals, refreshments, or entertainment of reasonable value, provided that:

- The practice does not violate any law or regulation or the standards of conduct of the recipient's organization.
- The business courtesy is consistent with industry practice, is infrequent in nature and is not lavish.
- The business courtesy is accurately reflected on the books and records of Krystelis.

16. Set Metrics and Report Results Accurately

16.1 Accurate Public Disclosures

We will make certain that all disclosures made in financial reports and public documents are full, fair, correct, timely and understandable. This obligation applies to all employees, including all financial executives, with any responsibility for the preparation for such reports, including drafting, reviewing, and signing or certifying the information contained therein.

Employees should, without delay, inform the Krystelis Leadership Team if they learn that information in any filing or public communication was untrue or misleading at the time it was made or if subsequent information would affect a similar future filing or public communication.

16.2 Corporate Recordkeeping

We create, keep, and dispose of our company records as part of our normal course of business in compliance with all Krystelis policies and guidelines, as well as all regulatory and legal requirements.

All corporate records must be true, accurate and complete, and company data must be promptly and accurately entered in our books following Krystelis's and other applicable accounting principles.

We must not improperly influence, manipulate, or mislead any unauthorized audit, nor interfere with any auditor engaged to perform an internal independent audit of Krystelis books, records, processes, or internal controls.

17. Promote Substance Over Form

At times, we are all faced with decisions we would rather not have to make and issues we would prefer to avoid. Sometimes, we hope that if we avoid confronting a problem, it will simply go away.

At Krystelis, we must have the courage to tackle the tough decisions and make difficult choices, secure in the knowledge that Krystelis is committed to doing the right thing. At times this will mean doing more than simply what the law requires. Merely because we can pursue a course of action does not mean we should do so.

Although Krystelis's guiding principles cannot address every issue or supply answers to every dilemma, they can define the spirit in which we intend to do business and should guide us in our daily conduct.

18. Reporting Breaches to the Code of Conduct

Each of us is responsible for knowing and adhering to the values and standards outlined in this Code and for raising questions if we are uncertain about company policy. If we are concerned whether the standards are being met or are aware of violations of the Code, we must contact Krystelis leadership.

Krystelis takes seriously the standards outlined in the Code, and violations are cause for disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment.

19. Confidential and Proprietary Information

Integral to Krystelis's business success is our protection of confidential company information, as well as non-public information entrusted to us by employees, customers, and other business partners. Confidential and proprietary information includes such things as pricing and financial data, customer names/addresses or non-public information about other companies, including current or potential supplier and vendors. We will not disclose confidential and non-public information without a valid business purpose and proper authorization.

20. Use of Company Resources

Company resources, including time, material, equipment, and information, are provided for company business use. Nonetheless, occasional personal use is permissible if it does not affect job performance or cause a disruption to the workplace.

Employees and those who represent Krystelis are trusted to behave responsibly and use good judgment to conserve company resources. Managers are responsible for the resources assigned to their departments and are empowered to resolve issues concerning their proper use.

Generally, we will not use company equipment such as computers, in the conduct of an outside business or in support of any religious, political, or other outside daily activity, except for company-requested support to non-profit organizations.

To protect the interests of Krystelis and our fellow employees, Krystelis reserves the right to monitor or review all data and information contained on an employee's company-issued computer or electronic device and the use of the internet. We will not tolerate the use of company resources to create, access, store, print, solicit or send any materials that are harassing, threatening, abusive, sexually explicit, or otherwise offensive or inappropriate.

21. Media Inquiries

Krystelis is a high-profile company in our community, and from time to time, employees may be approached by reporters and other members of the media. To ensure that we speak with one voice and provide accurate information about the company, we should direct all media inquiries to a member of the Krystelis Leadership Team. No one may issue a press release without first consulting the Krystelis Leadership Team.

22. Use of Social Media

Krystelis encourages employees to use social media channels to enhance their professional network and promote the best interests of the company. Employees should use good judgement when using social media to discuss work-related matters. All social media posts should maintain a respectful tone and not breach company confidentiality.

23. Do the Right Thing

Several key questions can help identify situations that may be unethical, inappropriate or illegal. Ask yourself:

- Does what I am doing follow the Krystelis guiding principles, Code of Conduct and company policies?
- Have I been asked to misrepresent information or deviate from normal procedure?
- Would I feel comfortable describing my decision at a staff meeting?
- How would it look if it made the headlines?
- What would I tell my child to do?
- Is this the right thing to do?
